Sensor
Sensor,sensing sow up and down posture

Comprehensively improve PSY Each lactation period can be reduced There is no need for personnel to supervise the production process

Lift farrowing crate will reduce the mortality of piglets from 5% to less than 1% by preventing the sow from rolling on and crushing her piglets, especially the frst week after After the birth of the piglets. It will improve your farm's PSY far better than before.

How it works:

When the sow stands up, the sow back touches the sensor. The sensor will raise the sow's standing area by triggering on the compressed air system.

The newborn will fall out from the sow's area, as the lifting height is beyond the climbing ability of the newborn. They will have to stay outside the sow's standing area until the sow lies down, which will release the sensor and lower the sow's standing area slowly to the same level as newborns walking around, No piglet will stand underneath the sow until she laydown.
